Call by the Education Innovation Working Group of COIMBRA Group

Founded in 1985, the Coimbra Group (CG) is an association of long-established European research universities of high international standard. (<http://www.coimbra-group.eu>). The Education Innovation Working Group of CG has launched a project with the aim of sharing information on innovative approaches to teaching and learning. The project intends to facilitate knowledge transfer and foster possible collaborations among member universities by creating a special webpage on Good Practices of Teaching & Learning Innovation. We invite you to contribute to this project by filling the template below with key information on a case of education innovations you have been involved and are ready to disseminate. The Education Innovation Working Group intends to launch the good practice webpage when sufficient number of contributions have been received. Please share your good practice with the Coimbra Group! Please forward this call to your colleagues who may have experiences to share with our international community!

We would also welcome comments to any issues related to this initiative.
